Bibliothèque mondiale du cheval

Débourrage

Auteur(s) : Pôle du document numérique, MRSH, Université de Caen Normandie - Marie-Laure Peretti

– 21/10/2026

Titre court	Horse Taming made easy / ROUS C., 1858 / ROUS C., 1858
Intitulé	Horse Taming made easy. Comprising the theory of Mr Rarey and the valuable system of Mr Field. By C. Rous. / ROUS C., RAREY John Solomon et FIELD
Adresse bibliographique	London, 1858
Description matérielle	Nombre de volumes : 1 vol. Nombre de pages : 16 p. Dimensions : in-16 carré
Langue(s)	Anglais

Présentation du contenu

« Pas de correspondance trouvée en bibliothèque à ce jour. En revanche, on trouve le titre annoncé dans les catalogues bibliographiques de l'époque comme dans le Publishers' circular and booksellers' record (London, Sampson Low, 1858, Vol. 21 - p.9). Concernant l'auteur, il pourrait s'agir sans certitude du Captain Crous?.Concernant les méthodes de Mr Field, un article trouvé dans le *The Medical Times and Gazette*Vol. 1, (London, J. & A. Churchill, 1858), p.389, détaille sa méthode basée sur l'inhalation d'huile de cumin, de rhodium et de poudre de chataigne : « Horse Taming — Mr Field the Veterinary Surgeon says : To operate with success it is necessary to be alone with the horse in a confined space and to take care that there is nothing to divert the animal's attention The articles required are oil of cumin, horse castor or the warty excrescence from the horse's leg and oil of rhodium. The horse castor is easily pulled off and must be grated fine. It has a peculiar rank musty smell the ammoniacal effluvium of which seems to be very acceptable to the horse. For oil of rhodium he has however a remarkable fondness. This is extracted from a wood which is brought from the Canary Islands and is usually sold as a perfume. It is retailed at 1d per drop. The modus operandi is : — Rub one or two drops of oil of cumin over your hands and pass your hands over his nostril so that he inhales it. This must be continued until you get his entire attention. Then put a little of the castor about the quantity of a good pinch of snuff on a lump of sugar and if the horse will not eat it from your hand put it into his mouth. Take eight drops of oil of rhodium in a into his mouth. Usually this with kind and gentle treatment makes him become your obedient servant and he will follow you about and permit you to take any liberty with him. In extreme cases the process may have to be repeated before you acquire the desired influence over him. If you are so inclined this operation may be repeated four or five times a day but above all things the utmost care must be taken to avoid hurting him These directions will enable any one to make a friend of his horse and if he be addicted to any tricks he can be cured. ». » Bibliothèque Mondiale du Cheval

Notes

Sources de la notice

Huth (1887)

Numérisation

Indexation

Equitation, Débourrage, cumin ; débourrage ; huile de rhodium ; odeur